'65 Corvette® Sting Ray™

Die zweite Generation Chevrolet® Corvette(1963 –1967) unterschied sich deutlich von der vorherigen. Statt dem bestehenden Wagen einige Gimmicks hinzuzufügen, stylte Bill Mitchell das Fahrzeug komplett neu, wobei der Hobbyangler sich von Form und Farbe eines Stachelrochens (=Sting Ray) inspirieren ließ. Der Wagen bot jetzt eine bessere Unterbringung von Fahrer und Beifahrer, eine noch bessere Straßenlage und mehr Leistung. Aufgrund des Fahrwerks und dank des V-8 Motors mit seinem erstaunlichen Leistungspotenzial bot die neue Corvette erstmalig echte Sportwagenqualitäten. Dieser V-8 Motor ging letztlich auf den Ingenieur Zora Arkus-Duntov zurück, der ihn ab 1955 in die erste Corvette Generation einbauen ließ. Der V-8 Block Motor begleitet, leicht variiert, bis heute die Corvette. Letztlich basierte der Erfolg der Corvette Modelle, die enorm zum Ansehen der gesamten US-Autoindustrie beitrugen, auf diesen Motor.

Doch auch die im Windtunnel entwickelte, aggressive Karosserie, zeichnete die zweite Corvette Generation aus. Erstmals in der Markengeschichte tauchte neben dem Roadster auch eine Coupéversion mit Fließheck im sportlichen Design auf. Markante Merkmale des neuen Wagens fanden sich in den versenkbaren Frontscheinwerfern und den großen Türen, die bei dem Coupé in das Dach ragten.

Das Baujahr 1965 wird als Gipfel der technischen Entwicklung dieser Generation angesehen. Die Corvette erreichte jetzt eine Höchstgeschwindigkeit von 228,5 Stundenkilometern. Der gerade einmal 1430 Kilogramm schwere Wagen beschleunigte von 0 auf 100 in 5,9 Sekunden, von 0 auf 160 in 16,5 Sekunden. Der V-8 Motor in der Einspritzerversion lieferte zudem satte 360 PS Leistung. Damit trug der Wagen des Jahres 1965 einiges dazu bei, dass die Corvette Modelle im Laufe der Jahre zum Inbegriff des amerikanischen Sportwagens schlechthin wurden.

'65 Corvette® Sting Ray™

The second generation Chevrolet® Corvette (1963-1967) differs conspicuously from its predecessors. Instead of adding a few gimmicks to the existing car, Bill Mitchell completely restyled it and, being a keen angler, allowed himself to be inspired by the shape and colour of a sting ray. The car now offers better accommodation for both driver and passenger, even better road holding and more power. The chassis and V8 engine with its astounding potential power offers the new Corvette real sports car qualities for the first time. This V8 engine is attributable to the engineer Zora Arkus-Duntov, who had it incorporated in the first generation Corvette from 1955 onwards. The V 8 engine unit with slight variations accompanied the Corvette until the present day. Ultimately the success of the Corvette cars, that made such an enormous contribution to the prestige of the whole US motor industry, was based on this engine.

The second generation Corvette was also characterized by aggressive bodywork which was developed in the wind tunnel. For the first time in the history of the marque, in addition to the roadster, a fast-back coupé version now emerged from the sporty design. Striking features of the new car include the pop-up headlamps and large doors that project into the roof of the coupé.

The year of manufacture, 1965 is regarded as the peak of the technical development of this generation. The Corvette now reached a top speed of 228.5 km/hour. For a heavy car weighing 1430 kg it accelerated from 0 to 100 in 5.9 seconds and from 0 to 150 in 16.5 seconds. The V8 engine in the fuel injection version delivered all of 360 bhp. The 1965 model therefore contributed something extra - over the years the Corvette would become the very embodiment of the American sports car.
